Why do we spend so much time and effort working to defeat animal "rights" legislation? The answer is simple - if we intend to continue having animals in our lives, we have no choice.

Over the last twenty years, we have seen a concern for the welfare of animals become increasingly intertwined with the radical philosophy of animal "rights". The difference is simple:

Animal Welfare = Responsible Use of animals

Animal Rights = No use of animals

This issue is not unique to Ohio. Radical animal rights organizations such as HSUS (Humane Society of the United States) and PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals) are working tirelessly to pass legislation in every state to severely restrict (and ultimately shut down) the animal industry in all its forms.

Do not be deceived - this very vocal minority who claim to "speak for the animals" do not intend to make life better for your animals - they intend to see to it that you have no animals, because in their words, animals are not ours to eat, wear, exhibit, experiment on, or profit from in any way.

The Ohio Association of Animal Owners is currently a 10,000+ member organization in Ohio that has a three-fold mission:

1. Protect the rights of animal owners;
2. Aid in securing fair regulations and legislation;
3. Educate animal owners in their responsibilities to animal care and public safety.

The OAAO supports the responsible use of animals and animal products.

Formed in March 1990, OAAO's membership is comprised of people from every aspect of the animal industry: farmers, exotic animal owners, educators and exhibitors, dealers, medical researchers, game ranchers, pet stores, capture/transport specialists, and pet owners. The organization first formed in direct response to animal "rights" legislation sponsored by Senator Charles Horn from Montgomery County, Ohio, which would have prohibited private ownership of "potentially dangerous" animals. The list of potentially dangerous animals included pygmy goats and exotic goldfish! OAAO managed to defeat the bill and has been instrumental in defeating many other animal rights bills since that time.

The OAAO is regarded at the Statehouse as an organization that is not necessarily huge, but is painfully honest. Politically incorrect at times, OAAO does not play the political game of "I'll give you this if you'll give me that". OAAO does not believe in bargaining away the rights of one group of animal owners in order to safeguard the rights of another. OAAO members stick together and do their best to encourage other animal interest groups to do the same.
